In Phileas Fogg's room his clothes were divided into different colours; each jacket had a number. In the wardrobe, there was a bag for keeping money, watches or other items. After looking in all the different rooms, he finally came to his own bedroom. Above the chest of drawers there was an electric clock; it was a red clock like the one that Phileas Fogg had in his living room. The two clocks played music at the exact same time. Below the clock there was a book listing the details of Passepartout's day.

- 1 seasons 2 corner 3 safe
- 4 fireplace 5 same electric clock
- 6 room (not living room) 7 ticked at the exact same second 8 piece of paper.

Example answer:

On Guy Fawkes night or Bonfire Night (5th November) in the UK we celebrate the day the House of Parliament was saved, but also death of Guy Fawkes because the government killed him for leaving explosives under the Houses of Parliament. Sometimes people burn a man of cloth, etc. called a 'Guy' but I think people prefer to watch the fireworks than celebrate this. It is not wrong to have a day when people can get together but I believe the celebration of a tradition should not hurt other people's feelings, if possible. I didn't know that in Indonesia you never give presents with your left hand so some people probably thought I was rude. If you want to give money or anything like that you should give it with your right hand. In England people think you are very rude if there is a queue and you don't wait your turn.

Inspector Fix: He wants to be friends with Passepartout so that he can stop Phileas Fogg leaving on the ship from Hong Kong and arrest him. Mr Fix wither a) has no other friends and he needs friend or b) he is only interested in his job.

Passepartout: He wants to go for a drink with Inspector Fix because he can talk with someone. He is very happy to see Phileas Fogg again but he seems to do well on his own too. Maybe he knows that Inspector Fix planned everything in the bar, but he doesn't know the real reason. He does not want to cause trouble and he is no doubt that Fogg will win.

Hi Christina,

Yes. It's so exciting! I have got a job looking after elephants in India. I start in two weeks. I get to stay with the elephants and wash them. I'm so happy. The only problem is I don't get any money. I have to pay for my food and accommodation but it's still cheaper than staying in a hotel. I'm going to be working here for one month and then next month I'm travelling to Thailand to see more elephants!

*I hope you are well. Love,
James*

Possible answers: an aero(plane) is the best way because it's the fastest. You can go where you want in a car, but you can't travel as fast as a train or a plane. A bus is very slow but you could stop in some interesting places. A bicycle is the best way to travel because it is good for the environment./It is not the best way because it takes so long./A balloon is the most exciting way to travel so it is the best.
